injured my cause. Be this as it may, I suspect that you are of my opinion that the doors of the Treasury are without doubt closed against any further application on my behalf, and that I have no other course to pursue, than the one so kindly proposed by you. My duty to my pious enclosed daughter, and her children, obliges me to sacrifice all private feelings upon the subject of the inscription, and I therefore throw myself entirely upon your goodness, to act as may seem most fit under the circumstances

I was told yesterday that a (Capitol) grand stone hotel had been placed on the house where my dear Brother died, in the Piazza di Spagna in Rome, in presence of a great number of English and Americans

It is mentioned in the Times, but I have not been able to procure it.

As your Mother knew my cousin Margaret, perhaps she may be able to to inform me what has become of my other three cousins, Midgley William and Mary.

There will be no difficulty in Spain with respect to the picture. I intend sending it to Bordeaux, where there are Steamers constantly leaving for London. I will advise you in good time of its departure.

Mr Lewis and family join with me in kindest regards to you, and believe me to remain

Dear Sir

Yours very sincerely
Fanny Kemble de Lewis

P.S While you have the kindness to send me as soon as convenient, a few lines for Mr Turner, which I will copy, and thus present myself in borrowed plumes

My dear Sir,

I beg to acknowledge yours of the 19th, and to inform you of the safe arrival of the Cheque upon the Treasury for £150, which by this time is in London, and will be presented by a Banker according to order.

I should have written to you immediately, but wanted until I could give you notice that the picture had been sent to Bordeaux, but as this must still be detained some days, I hasten to answer you according to your request.

During my dear brother's residence in Rome, I lived in the house of my Guardian, and had no direct communication with Mr Severn, but from one of his letters in
